ABOUT ELIZA

Hello! My name is Eliza, and I'm passionate about helping others and making a meaningful difference in their lives. Since 2021, I've been working in the disability sector as both a support worker and an NDIS support coordinator. My journey began in Mount Isa, where I dedicated myself to this field, and recently, I moved back to the Sunshine Coast/Morton Bay region to be closer to family and reconnect with the community.

In my spare time, I love playing video games, spending time with my animals, and being creative. My work has allowed me to build strong relationships with my clients and their families, always striving to treat everyone with dignity, respect, and empathy.

I have had the privilege of working closely with Indigenous communities, which has deepened my commitment to social justice and equality. My experiences have equipped me with the skills to navigate the disability support system effectively and provide person-centered care tailored to each individual's needs and goals.

I am excited about continuing my journey in the community service sector and look forward to contributing to the well-being, independence, and overall quality of life of individuals with disabilities.
